Our relationship with money reveals our deepest degrees of separation from Source, as well as our true faith in life. Money, like sex, can be a compelling screen covering past wounds, unmet needs, issues around control, security and authority and ultimately trust in Life.

"It was a journey of love, of tolerance, of understanding. A bonding that only true community and fellowship can provide to see oneself through seeing others and the revelation that we are indeed all one..." – 2018 Participant

Conflict, shame, avoidance and compulsion that surround money can obscure the radical and simple gesture of Surrender to Life, which according to the Guide, can open the door to the Infinite Treasury, which is our True Nature.

All too often, especially in spiritual circles, frank discussion of finances is taboo. Revealing our net worth can be as difficult to expose as deep seated negativity or sexual distortion.

The Summer Institute format gives us the luxury to deeply delve into our fundamental beliefs, attitudes and behaviors around this essential aspect of daily life. What do we truly invest in? How do we spend ourselves? And how to live an awake life in an intimate relationship with money?

"Each morning I would say, 'This is it, I guess I've received what I came for.' But, no, the unfoldment continued day-by-day until the end... This is the beauty of a retreat -- a container to go deeper than I could go alone, in session or in a short workshop. Each day I was gifted with other people's journeys to enrich my own work. I will be back to the Summer Institute." -- 2018 Participant
